Rich in History

Thank you for considering 20 South Battery for your event! A gem of Charleston's Historic District, 20 South Battery is a portal to old world Southern charm complemented by new world luxuries.

Offering a unique ambiance, lending itself to an unparalleled occasion. Let us help you execute your vision for the perfect event!

20 South Battery has recently undergone extensive preservation efforts, restoring this Charleston mansion to all its former glory. It is a memorable setting for any occasion and a registered Charleston landmark that will leave your guests in awe. We look forward to helping you create your ideal event amidst the natural splendor of our mansion garden on Charleston's notable Battery.

Events hosted on the property can accommodate up to 50 guests.

Originally built in 1843 as a private residence, the main home and carriage house reflected the prosperity that was prevalent in South Carolina during the era. With the American Civil War beginning a few years prior, the house was battered during the 1863 Siege of Charleston. We are fortunate, as a result, that the structure even survived such an assault. But survive it did, and when Colonel Lathers of the Union Army purchased the property in 1870 he hired John Henry Devereaux, a well known Charleston architect, to renovate the house.

With this renewal, 20 South Battery received a fresh breath of life. A mansard roof was added, which originally housed a library. A new ballroom was also constructed, not for dancing but to become a conference room in which politicians, elite members of the community and influential decision makers would gather.

In 2018, 20 South Battery assumed new ownership and with that, the property has undergone considerable preservation efforts; a labor of love with the intent of revitalizing this Charleston gem to all its former grandeur. We are thrilled to welcome you to experience the abounding charm.
